HIS ASPHALT, WITH HOLES IN IT THEY DON'T MAKE HIM MEND.

Maybe He'll Be Bumping Over It Soon -Which Calls Up the Canal Asphalt, the Canal Committee's Report and the Glorious $101,000,000 Future.

Gen. Francis V. Greene didn't get back vesterday from his vacation journeyings. with Gov. Odell. His secretary said that as soon as he reached the East the General would be at his desk in Mulberry street, where an accumulation of letters awaits him. The secretary wouldn't say yesterday whether the letters include a copy of the expert's report on the condition of asphalt pavements made by order of Commissioner of Public Works Livingston. That report sets forth that the asphalt pavement is full of holes in many streets and that the holes are due to imperfect and inferior work by the contractors. Mayor Low's sense of the courtesies that should pass between officials is so keen, his cabinet members say, that he would not think of blue pencilling this report and shipping it on to Gen. Greene, but it was thought at the City Hall that Acting Mayor Charles V. Fornes, in a moment of abstraction, might have sent it up to Mulberry street.

According to an official biographer, Gen. Greene resigned from the army in 1886 to become vice-president of the Barber Asphalt Paving Company. He was with that company until the formation of the Asphalt Trust, and is now alleged in the complaint in a civil action to have been one of the largest profit sharers in the promotion of the Asphalt Company of America. The asphalt pavements of New York, which are now full of holes because of the imperfect and inferior work of the contractors, were almost all the work of the Barber company and the companies absorbed in the consolidation and whose responsibilities of maintenance were assumed and now stand in the name of the Barber Asphalt Paving Company.

At the head of the Barber company until the trust was organized in 1899 Gen. Greene got a salary of $25,000 a year; at least, when he disposed of the report that he was a candidate to succeed George W. Aldridge Public Works. As the head of the trust up to the time, in 1902, when it went on the rocks Gen. Greene had a directing hand in Asphalt Company, the Atlantic Alcatraz Company, the Metropolitan Company, the Mack Paving Company (which paved Broadway) and the Standard Paving Company and some lesser companies, all now together. All of these companies have had a share in paving the streets of which Commissioner Livingston's expert now tomplains, and if Gen. Greene's carriage tocks in and out of the asphalt holes as he drives from the railway station to his house or his club he might serenely close his eyes and say "I made 'em." As he was an assistant astronomer in the Government service for four years he may prefer to sit back and study the stars.

An admirer of Gen. Greene calls attention to his versatility and fecundity. On March 8, 1899. Gov. Theodore Roosevelt appointed Gen. Greene chairman of a committee to investigate and report on the canal question, saving: "The broad question of the proper policy which the State should pursue in canal matters remains unsolved, and ask you to help me to reach the proper the little band of promoters busy with the organization of the Asphalt Company of sponded the Magistrate. solution." Gen. Greene was then one of rated in New Jersey. Gen. Greene's 900 shares of stock in the Barber company had been turned in at $300 a share, making $270,000. a value which the shorn stockholders of the Asphalt Company of America now declare to have been false and unfair to

The Warren-Scharf Asphalt Company was taken in at a valuation of $2,278,320, although it is alleged that the promoters first bought it for about $1,500,000, and somebody-not the stockholders of the trust-got the benefit of the difference of time that Gen. Greene, making his report to Gov. Roosevelt, wrote:

a repetition of the unfortunate results under under the present law were unfortunate n the following respects: An unnecessary expenditure for advertising, a loss of public money through unbalanced bids, and an innecessary expenditure through the use of force account:

One of the unfortunate results of the $9,000,000 expenditure concerned the Warren-Scharf Asphalt Company, which Gen. Greene had taken into the Asphalt Trust. The Warren-Scharf company had two contracts under the $9,000,000 act, and when Gen. Greene was telling Gov. Roosevelt how unfortunate it was that the State should be looted by contractors on canal work the claim of the Warren-Scharf company was under consideration by the Canal Board. On the two jobs its claim for extra work and prospective profits amounted to $125,000, of which $71,000 was for loss of profits. The counsel for the Warren-Scharf company insisted that the plant had been left idle, and that the State must pay for the loss suffered by the failure to use it elsewhere. The Canal Board declared:

We think differently. At the time that the work was suspended, in May, 1898, it was well known not only to the State officials. but to the contractor, that no funds could or would be available to continue the work ntil after the session of the Legislature in the following year, which would be at least a y ar from that date. That fact being apparent to the contractor, the leaving of the plant unemployed was at its own risk and loes not form a basis for claim against the State in this matter.

Ultimately the Canal Board awarded $64,000 to the Warren-Scharf company, of which $22,800 was for prospective profits; money paid to the company in December, 1901, when it was in the Asphalt Trust, a few months later to go into dissolution. The story that Gov. Odell intends to make Gen. Greene chairman of the Advisory Board of Engineers to build the enlarged canal, if the people vote the $101,000,000 appropriation, was revived resterday blank checks in his pockets. He said that he was walking down East Houston street when a stranger asked him to change a five-dollar bill. He did so and showed his roll of money. The stranger then invited him to a cigar store on Second avenue to have a drink, he said where two other men joined them, and the four sat down to a game of stuss. During the game the players had several drinks. and Forman thinks he was drugged. He came to the city to visit a sister who lives at 313 Rivington street, and was found unconscious in the hallway of that house on

The man's money and the blank checks were gone and he could not remember what took place from the time he sat down to play stuss until he found himself at his sister's home. Detective Ruth of the Fifth street station heard about the matter on Wednesday night and accompanied Forman to 8 Second avenue, where he pointed to three men as those with whom he had played cards. ADMIRAL SCHOPPE'S COMMAND

THE BARBER-DEPUTY TAKES POSSESSION OF A SQUADRON.

Five Craft at the Crescent Co.'s Plant Including Two Mexican Gunboats, Seized Because of an Unpaid Lumber Bill-Nautical Information Wanted.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Aug. 6 .- "That man Sands up at Bar Harbor has only got five ships, and so have I, so I guess I'm just as much of an Admiral as he," said Henry J. Schoppe, the barber-deputy of Sheriff Coriell of Union county.

Schoppe is the commander-in-chief of an army of five constables who swooped down last Tuesday on the Elizabethport yards of the Crescent Shipyard Company to take possession of five vessels building there. He was armed with orders of attachment issued by Supreme Court Commissioner William Pintard of Red Bank, N. J. at the request of the lumber firm of F. L. & A. Heidritter of this city, who have applied to the court for a lien on the vessels on account of material delivered. Their total claim is said to be $6,000.

Although Schoppe acquired a lot of valuable experience at the time he commanded the forces that took possession of the United States cruiser Chattanooga in the same yards, he was rather puzzled by the difficulties of this new task. The Chattanooga was still on the stocks, and Schoppe, on the advice of Constable Weaver, who is an exsoldier, treated her simply as a fortress, which he garrisoned.

The five vessels attached on Tuesday are all affoat and lying off the yards. Two of them already have had preliminary trial them already have had preliminary trial trips and the three others are to have theirs in a few days. The problems before Schoppe on this occasion were thus purely naval, but he mastered them. He boarded one at a time at the head of his entire force. When he had ascertained that no resistance was to be feared, and that the boats would not suddenly drift away from under his feet, he put a crew of one man on each boat, with orders to stick to her. The force distributed thus consisted of Constables Teipel, Weaver, Peek, Jr., Cary and Lawrence.

Teipel and Weaver are veterans of the Chattanooga campaign, but the three others are new men. Peek is a telegrapher. Cary works as an auctioneer when not serving the county, and Lawrence was a mason before he became a constable. Lawrence wants to be regarded as the nautical expert among the five, because a mason naturally among the five, because a mason naturally knows something about architecture, and naval architecture is only a branch of that profession. He is said to have gone so far as to enter into a dispute with his superior officer, Schoppe, with the result that the latter yesterday sent the following despatch to Sheriff Coriell:

"What's the difference between port and larboard? Important."

"There ain't none," the Sheriff is reported to have replied, although this could not be verified yesterday. A second message, this time carried by a boy, then came from Schoppe. It read:

rom Schoppe. It read:
"Lawrence says there is. Please send back with messenger one copy of Webster's Unabridged."

Late yesterday afternoon one of the constables returned to the Sheriff's office for a rest. He was able to tell of the comlete restoration of peace and good will tween the commander of the forces Elizabethport and the would-be naval expert. This happy state of affairs, he said, had been brought about by one of the shipyard men, who had told Schoppe and Lawrence that they were a pair of and Lawrence that they were a pan of the landlubbers. The representatives of the law joined hands at once, and the ship-yard man had to leave the premises.

The vessels now manned and held by the Sheriff's men are the Tampleo and the Vera Cruz, 1,000-ton gunboats ordered by the Mexican Government; the Happy Day, a 200-foot sidewheeler, which is being built for Charles M. Schwab and is to carry the school children of New York to the steel magnate's recreation park on Staten Island; the Plainfield, a new ferryboat for the Central Railroad of New Jersey, and the Cearina, a 140-foot steam yacht, built for Charles S. Bryan of Sharp & Bryan, the brokerage firm which failed on Wednes-day. The Tampico and the Czarina have had their first trials. The Happy Day is ready for her first trip and the two other boats will be within a few days. President Mason S. Chace of the Crescent Shipyard Company said yesterday that the appearance of the Sheriff's men at the yards and the application by the Heid-ritters for a lien had in no way interfered with the work on the vessels.

"It is not a seizure in the proper meaning of the word," said Mr. Chace, "but just a precautionary step to secure the lien for which the Heidritters are now asking the court. They have delivered timber which is distributed among all the boats mentioned, court. ut their total claim does not exceed "To my thinking, the whole proceeding seems illegal. The Crescent works are a part of the United States Shipbuilding Company. The latter concern is in the hands of a receiver appointed by the United States courts. How the courts of New Jersey can take any action against the Crescent yards under such circumstances is more than I can see Another man who is familiar with the affairs of the Crescent Shipyard Company said yesterday that he thought special pains had been taken by certain parties antagon-istic to the so-called Ship Trust to annoy the Crescent yards on every possible occa-sion. "I think that the reason for this is the former connection of Lewis Nixon with this firm," he said. They regard the Crescent yards as the personal property of Mr. Nixon, and they think that by annoying this firm they are also annoying him."

The police believe that he is a mute because he hasn't uttered a word since he was picked up early oners. Edmund whison has been retained to defend them, but it is said by one in a position to know that unless Lamar procures bail for them here they will make a clean breast of the affair.

Long Branch, N. J., Aug. 6.—Judge Wilbur A. Heisley of the Monmouth County Circuit Court, before whom Eastman and last Wednesday morning while wandering realized that the desk sergeant wanted to know his name and wrote "Pope Pius III." on a piece of paper.

In the man's pockets were found several

Circuit Court, before whom Eastman and Brown will be tried if indicted, said this evening that the men could waive indict-ment and ask for a speedy trial, but that this procedure would not hasten matters, as the court will adjourn after next Thursday to the September term, when the Grand Jury will reconvene. If counsel ask that their clients be admitted to bail a prelim-inary hearing will be had to determine the amount. Some of the witnesses for the State have already been approached and the State does not intend to produce them all until the time of the trial prosecutor already has some evidence in hand on this head and there will be another arrest in a few days.

There are now three men under bail. David Lamar, his coachman, Patrick Dunphy, and his brother-in-law, Bernard Smith. Michael O'Donohue, another employee of David Lamar, is under bail as a State

MGR. FALCONIO TO COME HERE. The Apostolic Delegate to Celebrate Pontifical Mass at Cliff Haven.

Mgr. Falconio, the Apostolic Delegate, will arrive in New York this morning on his way to Cliff Haven, N. Y., where, on Sunday, he will celebrate a solemn pontifical high mass for Pius X., at the Catholio Summer School.

Summer School.

This ceremony will probably be the only official jubilation in the United States on the occasion of the coronation of Pius X. It is expected that Bishop Burks of Albany will deliver the sermon on this eccasion. Archbishop Farley may also strend and preside.

PIPPLES. Don't Allow Your Face to Become Disfigured by Unsightly Pimples, Which When Neglected Leave an Ugly Flark or Lifelong Scar Behind Them.

A cake of Medicura Soap, when used according to the following directions, will immediately remove unsightly Pimples in all and every case:

Before retiring bathe your face with warm water, then apply Medicura Soap in the form of a creamy lather, allowing it to remain for a while, so that the skin may absorb the nutritious and healing qualities contained in Medicura Soap, and then washing off same with lukewarm water.

In the morning repeat the above application, using cool water to wash off the lather from the face, so as to close up the pores and prevent catching cold by exposure.

INWOOD'S PATRIARCH DEAD. He Had Never Been Further From the

Hamlet of His Birth Than Caparsie. Inwood, L. I., spent most of yesterday discussing the finding of old Henry Combs, its patriarch, dead in bed the day before. His sister-in-law, Mrs. Sally Ann Combs, went to his cottage on Wednesday afternoon to thank him for some vegetables which he had dug from his garden and had carried over to her the previous morning. She couldn't get into his second-floor rooms, and the Shaws, who rent the ground floor, broke in the door and found the old man stretched on his mattress, his gray-muzzled fox terrier curled up at his feet.

Henry Combs was the oldest native of the neighborhood by many years. When, over three-quarters of a century ago, the number of houses at the head of Jamaica number of houses at the head of Jamaica Bay could be counted on the fingers, his father, Lawrence Combs, a veteran of the War of 1812, owned and worked a small farm at what is now Bay View and McNeil avenues. Henry was born in 1829. With the exception of a three months' trip to Congress he was a very out of the village. Canarsis, he was never out of the village boundaries. He was a bachelor. Up to twenty-five vears ago he spent his time supporting his paralytic father. Then he took care of his brother, sister-in-law. and any one in the hamlet who needed helping hand.

Unidentified Man Drops Dead in Street. A man about 35 years old, 5 feet 6 inches tall, weighing 125 pounds, with light complexion, mustache and hair, was taken ill at 106th street and Third avenue yesterday and died in a patrol wagon while being removed to the East 104th street station. An ambulance surgeon from the Harlem Hospital examined the body and said he thought the man had died from heart
